1997 Flooding in Reno

"I wasn't expecting it to be that deep, we had no idea that it would be that deep, I left a lot of stuff on the counter. Then we had the freeze. A lot of the stuff was filled with water, then the water froze and expanded and caused even more damage.

The freeze made it miserable." – Dick Mills, local auto shop owner, recounting the 1997 flooding

"It was almost like people didn't believe it was going to happen, so there was little preparation until the water was above the banks in downtown Reno." – Paul Urban, local resident, recounting the 1997 flooding

Flooding near Reno, 2005

“Water was just starting to lap over Virginia Street Bridge and they were starting to close things downtown. We began to notice the debris going down the river, like big logs, starting to get backed up behind the bridge.” – Glen Daily, retired city public works employee recounting his experience during the 2005 flooding
