

Welcome to a Silver Jackets Webinar and
Panel Presentations

*Using Serious Games to Improve
Flood Risk Awareness and Build Resilience*

For audio, please dial (877) 336-1839 with access code 5884527 and security code 4567

Elizabeth Eide, Ph.D.

- Director of the Board on Earth Sciences and Resources and acting Director of the Water Science and Technology Board at the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine.
- Ph. D. in geology at Stanford University
- 12 years at Geological Survey of Norway
- Her publications include over 50 peer-reviewed journal articles and book chapters.
- Overseen studies on disaster resilience and floodplain mapping as well as many more subjects

Michelle Schultz, GISP

- Enterprise Geographic Information Systems Specialist at the USACE Omaha District
- Expertise in creating digital maps, websites, and GPS data collection systems
- Provide support for a number interesting projects:
 - Threatened and Endangered Species Studies
 - Cultural Resource Studies
 - Floodplain Mapping
 - Missouri River Recovery Program

Patrice Legro

- Director at Marian Koshland Science Museum
- 28 years with the National Academy of Sciences
- Master's Degree in International Political Economics
- Successful track record in science education and public understanding of science.

Harvey S Hill, Ph.D.

- Policy Fellow for the American Association for the Advancement of Sciences at USACE IWR in Alexandria, VA.
- Developed and led a climate decision support and adaptation unit in Canada.
- Contracted with NOAA on integrating climate information, water systems, forest fire prevention, agriculture, and communications management.
- Currently working on a drought & multi-hazard tournament framework that you will hear about today.